A. Summary of Suggestion

The USSR has donated several thousand scientific and technical books to the University of [REDACTED] Library. Ergo, it is suggested that a copy of the "gift inventory" be obtained and that this list be checked in Washington to determine if the consignment includes significant works not already in the US. If the list calls attention to items worth procuring, it should not be too difficult to obtain access to the books long enough to photograph them. Even if no new Soviet technical works come to hand as a result of the suggested action, it is believed that the inventory list will reveal points of intelligence interest re Soviet plans for [REDACTED]

On 25 March 1957 the CIA Librarian stated:

"This information provided by the requestor is of interest to the CIA Library. It is the sort of information that could very well have come as a requirement requesting information.

If the suggester wishes further information on his suggestion (request for information) it is recommended he inquire after 1 July 1957, since the Chief of the Near East Section is not due back until after this date.

I do not believe this suggestion makes any added contribution. It is in fact, a request for information."

On 25 March 1957 the CIA Librarian stated:

"This suggestion dealt with the donation of USSR books for information and that the Chief of the Near East Section, Library of Congress, on tour in the area will be asked to look into this matter.

It is therefore suggested that this case be closed out as a result of this report. The suggestor should be given minimal acknowledgement for calling this announcement to our attention. The extensive efforts the CIA Library and other U.S. Government agencies are undertaking to have as complete coverage of USSR publications are outside the purview of this paper: they are voluminous and exhaustive. It is our considered opinion that the [redacted] has received very few, if any, USSR publications not available to us through other, more efficient channels.

The suggestor should be told further that if he wishes to take the time, he should consult with the Chief of the Acquisitions Branch, CIA Library, (Ext. 548) from whom he could receive a thorough, informative briefing on the entire USSR publication collection program.

"This suggestion was of interest to the CIA Library and was responsible for certain action. Moreover, in paragraph 3 of his memo dated 17 Sept. 1957, the CIA Librarian states, 'The suggestor should be given minimal acknowledgement for calling this announcement to our attention.' In view of this, I believe the suggestor should be given a small award."

On 12 December 1957, an inquiry to the Agency Librarian brought the reply that he felt the suggested check of books in [REDACTED] was routine and did not contribute or change established procedures or plans. He said such suggestions occur frequently from all levels of the Agency and the Library is always grateful for the interest as well as the proposal, whether fruitful or not. He explained that his remarks in paragraph 3 meant to express or acknowledge the appreciation of his office and to encourage continued interest and cooperation.

This explanation was relayed to [REDACTED] who maintained that he still believed the suggestor is entitled to an award and that the Committee should vote on it. He believes that the suggestion prompted the library to take action.
